

CPYRGHT

6 November 1967

NORTH KOREAN CARTOON CASTIGATES THE CIA

[Editorial Report] The cartoon entitled "South Korean 'Branch' of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency" and drawn by Ho Hung-t'aek was printed on page 131 in the
(cont'd)

6 November 1967
CPYRGHT

FPD:FAR EAST

April 1967 issue of CH'OLLIMA, a general interest-type periodical published monthly in Pyongyang by the Working Organizations Publishing Office (Kullo Tanch'e Ch'ulp'an-sa). The man behind the smaller panel is identified as Pak Chong-hui and the smaller panel is labelled "the Blue House," the ROK official presidential residence. The text in the box reads as follows:

Pak Chong-hui who presumptuously likes to identify himself as "nationalistic" and "democratic." Pak Chong-hui whom the government-paid American publications are building up as a "passionate patriot of Korea" and as the man who has laid the "foundation of democratic politics."

In reality, however, he is a loyal servant of American imperialism and has won the hat of "presidency" as a result of the 16 May military incident which was "the most successful revolution in the overseas operations of the CIA," according to the former head of CIA, Allen Dulles.

The Blue House is none other than an agency of the White House.